Council Adds S. Boulevards To Mansfield's Second Ward

Schools Adjust Debts

City Gets 300 More Voters

City council and the Mansfield board of education last night completed the annexation of South Boulevards to the city.

Council, meeting in special session, made the village a part of the Second ward.

The board of education accepted the South Boulevards share of Madison township school indebtedness.

Action of council in adding the Boulevards to the Second ward was requested by the county board of elections so plans for balloting in the Nov. 2 election can be completed.

Although the council action increases the number of voters in the Second ward by approximately 300, no additional wards can be created in the city until after the 1950 federal census The city now has six wards.

If the 1950 census shows Mansfield's population has passed the 40,000 mark, another ward can be formed and another councilman will be added.

NEEDS COUNCIL OK

Council is the only body authorized to set ward boundary lines. The board of elections can set up precinct boundaries within the wards.

Council last night made the Jefferson street allotment a part of the Fifth ward.

The block-square allotment was admitted to the city in 1946, but due to an oversight, council never legally acted to make it a part of the Fifth ward.

The election board permitted the residents of that section to vote as Fifth ward residents, although technically they were not yet a part of the ward.

The board of education's approval of the South Boulevards debt settlement was sent to the Madison township board of education for final approval.

Under the agreement, the Mansfield school board gets $4,567 in assets and $15,150 in debts.

The city board will receive more money from the county auditor from school taxes from South Boulevards residents and that money will be used to pay off the $45,000 debt over a five-year period.

Reveals Murder Proposal

DETROIT — (UP) — A Detroit ex-convict said today he was offered $15,000 early last spring to kill Walter Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers.

John Miller, 45, said the offer was made by Carl Bolton, 39, former minor UAW official who was examined today on a charge of blasting Reuther with a shotgun last April 20.

Miller said Bolton, also an ex-convict, asked him last March if he was "still open for that proposition."

"I'm open to any proposition if there's enough money in it," Miller said he replied. He told Prosecuting Attorney James N. McNally that Bolton then referred only to killing "a dirty, red communist."

Miller said it was several days later when Bolton named Reuther in connection with the "proposition."

BOLTON GETS SHOTGUNS

He said that the day before the shooting, Bolton picked up two shotguns and some shells which he had left at Miller's home.

Miller and some friends who were playing cards jestingly asked Bolton if he were "going hunting."

"I'm going to get myself — — commie," Bolton said, according to Miller's testimony.

Miller said the next and last time he saw Bolton was about 10 days after the shooting. Bolton had been questioned in an early round-up of suspects. Miller asked him about Reuther and Bolton replied:

"Why, that dirty — — commie got what was coming to him —" Miller said Bolton stopped in the middle of the sentence, turned abruptly and left the house.

Earlier Reuther reviewed his activities on the night of the shooting. He said the blast felt "like a bomb coming through the window."

The 41-year-old UAW president left immediately after his testimony to receive a treatment for his right arm, which was shattered by the full charge of pellets He carried his arm in a large, white sling surrounding a leather brace

The increased capitalization, said Ohio Bell President Randolph Eide, will be in the form of common stock with a par value of $100 a share. The funds will be used for continuing expansion of the company's facilities, which have been increased since the first of the year at a four-million-dollar-a-month rate.

Nazi Army Head Dies

Was Scheduled For War Crimes Trial

HAMBURG, Germany — (AP) — Former German Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch died last night in the British Military hospital here, where he was under guard awaiting trial as a war criminal.

Von Brauchitsch had faced trial with three other leaders of the German army of World War II—Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt and Erich von Mannstein and Col. Gen. Adolf Strauss—all in British custody.

A British army announcement said Von Brauchitsch, 67, died of coronary thrombosis. He had been placed on the critical list only three hours before

Von Rundstedt, Von Mannstein and Strauss also are in the military hospital. All four were taken there last month, and placed in comfortable quarters under constant guard. Previously they had been held in a prisoner-of-war dispersal center.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin recently announced in the House of Commons that American investigators had turned up evidence establishing a prima facie case against the four German military men. The British had intended to begin the trial in Hamburg next January.

Von Brauchitsch became commander in chief of the German army as a result of a sensational cabinet shake-up by Hitler in 1938. He remained commander of the German army until it bogged down in the Russian snows before Moscow. Hitler fired him Dec 20, 1941.

Beast Cracks Lock

Two Men Battle Chimps Barehanded

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Two unarmed men battled a pair of escaped chimpanzees through cages and on the rooftops of the Mesker Park zoo here yesterday. Both of the men suffered serious injuries before sheriff's deputies, city policemen and zoo officials joined the wild scramble and killed one of the animals and recaptured the other.

The animals attacked George Davis, 53-year-old plumbing company worker, and E. J. Morton, 45, Evansville park board general foreman, as they were checking the heating system in an adjoining cage.

"Hank," a heavy male chimpanzee, and his mate, "Kuku," cracked the lock on the door connecting the two cages. They pounced on the two workers without warning.

Davis broke loose and climbed a ladder to the roof of the animal house but one chimp swung up after him and another barehanded tussle followed They fell from the roof, the chimpanzee landing on Davis. The struggle continued on the ground until help arrived and the animal was driven off. Davis lost two fingers on his left hand and suffered a broken wrist during the fight and fall.

The other battling ape kept Morton trapped in the cage. Morton suffered multiple lacerations on his hands, arms, legs and a dislocated shoulder before the chimpanzee turned and fled. Morton lost consciousness before he was taken to a hospital.

Bob McGraw, the zoo's animal superintendent, trapped the male chimpanzee in an empty alligator pit and killed it with a deputy's revolver. He later captured Kuku on the edge of a highway near the zoo and led her back to her cage

Texas Blast Kills Four

TEXAS CITY, Tex — (UP) — Texas City, still jittery over a series of explosions that killed some 400 persons in 1947 counted four dead and 19 injured today as the result of a break in a butane pipeline which enveloped 14 automobiles in a sheet of flame.

Five of the injured were burned so critically physicians said they were "expected to die." Eleven others were in serious condition.

The blast occurred near the Stone oil refinery last night while the automobiles were lined up on the highway waiting for a switch engine to shunt a string of cars across a railroad crossing

The high pressure pipeline, located 50 feet from the highway, exploded without warning, sending a single sheet of flame across the road like a blast from a giant's blowtorch.

The searing flame floated across a vacant lot and burned itself out, leaving behind its 23 victims roasting in their automobiles.

Not until switchmen broke the train could motorists on the opposite side reach the stricken passengers

Volcano Kills 40

SANTIAGO, Chile — (UP) — Unofficial reports said today that 40 persons were killed and 200 are missing as the result of a sudden eruption of volcanic Mt. Villarica in central Chile, which destroyed four villages

2 Boards Seek Food Inspector

City Asked To Build Staff

The city-county board of health has asked city council to provide funds in the 1949 appropriation bill for the hiring of an additional sanitarian to "work principally in the field of restaurant and food handling inspections."

The request was made in the form of a letter read last night at a council meeting. The letter was signed by Dr. Harry Wain, city-council health commissioner.

"It is necessary in order to carry on an adequate program of sanitation, principally in the field of restaurant and food inspections, to secure the services of another sanitarian to serve the city and the county," the letter said

The letter explained that the city was asked to provide $2,000 annually, or two-thirds of the sanitarian's salary, because his work would be principally within the city limits.

CALLED INADEQUATE

Dr. Wain pointed out today that "accepted public health standards require one inspector for each 15,000 persons, but that under the present set-up, there is only one inspector for the city's entire population "

The health department now employs four inspectors. One milk inspector, one plumbing inspector and two sanitarians. One of the sanitarians works in the county and the other in the city.

"At present, the work load is such that it is impossible for those two men to carry on an adequate program of restaurant and food handling inspection," Dr. Wain explained.

Action on the health board's request will not be taken until January, when city council meets to draw up the appropriation bill for 1949

Love Potion Alibi Hit

Medics Testify About Autopsy

MEDINA —(U.P.)— Three medical authorities today disputed the alibi of Clark Hill, 19, that he was rendered unconscious by the same carbon monoxide fumes that killed his girl friend, 17-year-old Jeanette Weimer.

The medical authorities told a three-judge tribunal that an autopsy disclosed a 70 per cent carbon monoxide content in the girl's blood, while blood tests on Hill turned out negative.

Their testimony supported the state's contention that Hill killed the girl in fright when she became unconscious after he had seduced her while she was under the effects of a "love potion" on April 10.

The medical authorities were Miss Edith Escott, superintendent of Medina Community hospital; Dr. Frederick Kornfield, hospital staff doctor, and Coroner Theodore Gross

The state contended that Hill attached a rubber hose to the exhaust pipe of his car and ran it into the front seat where Miss Weimer lay unconscious.

Hill, who first signed a 23-page confession, then pleaded innocent, contended that he also was unconscious in the car for 16 hours and awoke late in the afternoon of April 10.

Witnesses, however, have testified that they saw him conscious in the auto and even spoke to him before the 16-hour time lapse. The state is demanding the electric chair for the youth.

Fur Coat Stolen at Police Ball

The last place you'd expect to find a thief is at the Policeman's ball—but one had enough nerve to show up last night. This bold character stole a $400 fur coat belonging to Mrs. Merle Wheitner, 469 South Diamond street.

She reported to the police at 1:30 a. m. this morning that she and her husband checked their coats when they arrived at the ball, receiving one check for the two coats that were hung on the same hanger. When they called for their garments at the end of the dance, her husband's coat was still on the hanger, but her coat was missing, she said.

Harry Dennis, check room concessioner, said the Coliseum was searched, but that he couldn't find the coat.

City's Chest Drive Gets Good Start

$20,473 Reported At Noon Today

A total of $20,473 toward the $122,635 goal of the 1948 Community Chest drive was reported by Chest workers at noon today.

The total is for the 10 uptown divisions. It includes the $9,000 previously reported by the special gifts division.

The divisions and their reports follow: public employes, $25; professions, $1,210; commercial A, $3,600; commercial B, $1,372; construction, $925; small industries, $331; general, $3,903; big industries, $7,310; public service, $595, and financial, $1,202.

The Empire Steel corporation and Farm Tools, Inc. were the first two big industries to report their quotas in full. The steel company has a quota of $5,830, and Farm Tools' quota was 1,480. The two were able to fill their quotas in the first day of the drive because both have a civic fund from which such contributions are made.

TOPS QUOTA

One more team of the special gifts division reported this morning. Team 9, headed by Dr F. J. Heringhaus turned in $385. The team's quota was $326

The annual drive got under way yesterday morning with a "kick-off" breakfast attended by 291 workers and their guests. The drive will continue through Oct. 28

The special gifts division began its drive for funds three weeks ago. All contributions to the special gifts division also are credited to the division or team which has the contributor as one of its prospects.

The entire drive of the Community Chest is divided into two units headed by the vice chairman of the drive. The Blue Stars unit is headed by Harold Osmond and the red feather unit by James McConnell

The Stars quota is $64,555, and the Feathers quota $58,080. Osmond has reported $7,132 in his unit and McConnell has reported $13,341 including the $7,310 received from the two big industries this morning. Osmond has received no report from the industrial divisions in his unit.

4,000 Dance At Annual Police Ball

Approximately 4,000 persons danced last night at the annual policeman's ball in the Coliseum, and most of them called it one of the best ever held in the city.

Lee Barrett and his 13-piece orchestra played for dancing from 9 p m. to 1 a. m

"I think it was the best band we've had in several years," Paul Martin, police identification officer, commented today.

The dance was highlighted by the grand march led by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison and their wives Police Chief Jesse J. Schwab and Mrs. Schwab followed. The American Legion provided the color guard.

Sheriff's deputies and the state highway patrol covered the policemen's beats during the evening.

11 Nations Support Decision

Fighting Rages Into Fourth Day

BULLETIN

CAIRO — (UP) — Mohomoud Fahmy El-Nokrashy Pasha, premier and foreign minister of Egypt, said today his country has agreed to accept the United Nations cease-fire order in Palestine on condition the Jews also accept it.

★

PARIS—(AP)—The United Nations security council today unanimously ordered an immediate and effective cease fire by Jews and Arabs in the southern Palestine desert fighting.

The council acted swiftly on the report of its interim mediator, Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, on the battle between Israeli troops and Egyptians for the Negev desert.

The 11-nation council first voted 9 to 0, with Russia and the Soviet Ukraine abstaining, to adopt a resolution calling for a cease fire and instructing Bunche to negotiate a settlement of the Negev dispute. Syria proposed this resolution.

Russia objected to combining the cease fire with the negotiations and asked for reconsideration of the resolution by sections. Russia and the Ukraine then voted for the cease fire but abstained on the other section of the resolution.

ASK MURDER REPORT

The council also adopted unanimously a British-Chinese resolution calling upon Israel to report soon on any progress in the assassination of the mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte. The same resolution asked more cooperation from both Jews and Arabs with the truce supervisors.

The council then adjourned, to prepare for its afternoon meeting on the Berlin crisis.

The Israeli representative in Paris and Dr. Bunche clashed during the council hearing over the causes of the fighting. Israel charged the security council was "not completely and accurately informed" by Bunche on the Jewish-Egyptian fighting in the Negev.

Bunche reported Israel had made the work of the truce observers increasingly difficult.

Planes Continue To Bomb Gaza

TEL AVIV, Israel — (AP) — Israeli air force bombing of Gaza roared into its fourth straight day today and the Arab civilian population was reported in flight from the capital of the Arab-proclaimed Palestine state.

United Nations observers already have left the port city. How nearly deserted it was could not be learned, but its use as a seat of the Arab government seemed to have been abandoned for the time being. Egyptian forces have occupied it.

The Israeli have blasted open a supply road to 23 Jewish settlements in the Negev through infantry and armour attacks with air support.

Jewish planes, striking again by full moon, raided El Arish airfield, Beersheba, Biet Jibrin, Majdal and Faluja last night.

The Egyptian air force, hitting back for the first time in the present truce-breaking battle, was reported to have bombed the Jewish settlements of Nir Am and Dorot.

OCTOBER SNOW . . . two inches deep in Hazelton, Pa.

Chilly Weather to Stay Until Friday

Fall 'Cold Wave' Relaxes Grip Slowly

The October "cold wave" was tapering off today, but the weatherman said there probably won't be any Indian summer weather before Friday.

For the second successive morning, the mercury dropped below freezing today. It probably will fall to about 30 again tonight, and then start climbing tomorrow, forecasters said The low today was 29.

A new cold front was moving into the Dakotas today, however, and forecasters said it probably would bring more cold to Ohio

The heavy frost of the past two nights did more good than harm to Richland county crops, County Agent C. N. McGrew said today.

The corn crop is aided by frost after it has become fully mature, as frost helps dry out the kernels. The frost has come so late this year, McGrew said, that it cannot be described as a "killing frost."

Motorists, however, were concerned about the cold snap, as they continued to buy fast-dwindling supplies of anti-freeze. Yesterday service stations reported heavy sales of anti-freeze.

Yesterday's high for Mansfield was 42 at 3:30 p. m.

Weather officials said they expected a high of 52 today. The official forecast for today was partly cloudy and warmer.

The mercury last night reached 29 in Akron and 30 in Columbus. Toledo's low was 31 while Cleveland's was 33.

The five-day extended Ohio forecast follows:

Temperatures will average four degrees below normal. Normal maximum 58. Normal minimum 42. Below normal Wednesday and Thursday. Warmer Friday and Saturday and cooler Sunday. Precipitation will average one-fourth to one-half inch scattered light rain eastern sections tonight. Rain Sunday.

A Plea Is Made For Passes For Girls Who Wear Glasses

By CYNTHIA LOWRY, AP Newsfeatures Writer

IT'S MANY YEARS now since I started going to the movies. Lots of things have changed cinematically since I was a girl. For one thing, talkies replaced the silents. But one thing hasn't changed a single bit, and I want to complain about it, bitterly.

The most recent example was a very good film entitled "A Foreign Affair," and the offender was a good looking blonde actress named Jean Arthur. In this movie, Miss Arthur enacts the role of a junketing congresswoman, checking up on morale among the troops in Berlin.

For about one-half of the film, they have Miss Arthur doing the classic role of an ugly duckling. She is shown being brisk, business-like, making notes on what she sees. She is all business, serious and intent. Okay, okay, that's all right with me. But to make sure that everyone knows Miss Arthur is a very unattractive young woman, they have placed a pair of glasses on her nose.

By movie standards, presumably accepted throughout the civilized world, the sure sign that any woman who isn't a grandmother is unattractive is a pair of glasses. And just as inevitably, round about the middle of the picture—after no male has even looked at her—she ups and throws her glasses away. Usually she also gets a new hairdo and blossoms out in some very tight-fitting clothes, too. But the sign to the movie audience that she's changed, emerged from her emotional and intellectual shell, is the fact that off come the cheaters. Immediately, the fellers flock around in such quantities the heroine has to beat them off with a stick, to give her own true love a chance.

To be perfectly honest about Miss Arthur, in "A Foreign Affair," she doesn't change her hairdo, she doesn't get a whole new wardrobe in the heart of occupied Berlin. All she does is take off her glasses, and permit the new, soft woman to emerge.

This device on the part of people who make movies should, by rights, enrage all the opticians and lens manufacturers and eyeglass frame manufacturers in the nation. After all, the spend a lot of money every year trying to persuade the public—particularly women—that optical aids won't cause all their friends to desert them, break up their happy homes and send husbands or sweethearts flying into the arms of Another Woman.

The fact that it's an unwritten rule of filmland that no attractive woman ever has recourse to spectacles undoubtedly has had its effect on millions of females whose vision is something short af 20/20.

There certainly must be another way to portray the familiar theme. How about having the heroine first show up with gravy spots all over her white pique dickey? How about having her constantly in need of a shampoo or even a comb? How about bad teeth—you can always have them capped or put on braces when the right man comes along. How about having her bite her fingernails? Let's get a little variety in this leaving of the cocoon.

And while we're on the subject, how about having a heroine, in magazine or movie, who gets her man in spite of tortoise-shell rims and without getting fitted for contact lenses?

Good Cooking Tricks to Know

By ALICE DENHOFF

There are tricks and little touches in cooking just as there are in everything else, from painting to pressing.

Take the matter of jellied madrilene, which can be either very insipid or very inspired eating.

To serve 4, soften tsp. gelatine in ½ c. cold water. Simmer together 4 c. fresh or canned tomatoes, tbsp. fortified margarine, 2 bouillon cubes, ½ tsp. pickling spices, ½ onion finely minced, and salt and pepper to taste. Strain. Pour over softened gelatine; stir until dissolved. Chill until jellied.

When ready to serve, brown ½ cup dried bread crumbs in 2 Tbsps. butter or margarine over low heat. Add grated cheese to suit, and a few grains cayenne pepper. Sprinkle over jellied soup.

For something special, serve garlic bread.

Add a little garlic powder, or a cut garlic clove, to 1-3 to ¼ c. butter or margarine, melted. Slice French or Italian loaf into inch-thick slices, but don't cut right through the loaf. Pour melted butter over cut sides. Toast in oven. Grand with soups and some salads, and specially fine with stews.

For a one-dish meal of Spanish Rice, place 4 tbsp. shortening, salad oil, butter or margarine in a large frying pan. Fry one c. uncooked rice 5 min. until brown. Add 2 tsp. salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Then add one small chopped onion, 2 chopped stalks celery; cook for 5 min. more. Add 4c. canned tomatoes, one c. leftover diced meat and one c. stock or boiling water to which tsp. gravy bouquet has been added. Lower heat, cover and simmer until rice is tender (about 25 min.), stirring occasionally. Uncover and brown in hot oven for 15 min. Serve in casserole.

Women who want to appear taller should always plan their hat, bag, dress and shoes in the same shade of color. Contrasting accessories make the figure appear shorter.

NEW DECORATIVE ACCENT

A pleasing decorative accent is given to this attractive modern living room by the new convector radiator recessed beneath the large window. The modern convector blends gracefully with the clean, inviting lines of the room in sharp contrast to the day when heating units were more of an eyesore than an asset to effective room interiors. Flowered draperies frame the convector-window ensemble. Walls and carpeting are in subtly contrasting shades of green and the modern chairs are chartreuse.

Can you pick the juvenile delinquent?

Joe

Eddie

Paul

Earl

STUDY the faces of these boys. Look at their eyes, the set of their lips, their general expressions. Can you pick the one who looks as though he might be in trouble with the law—not just for a bit of mischief, but for a serious crime?

Frankly, we doubt if you—or anyone—can tell a delinquent by looking at him. Because you can't see the things that make a boy or girl a delinquent.

You can't see the bickering parents that made his home unlovable. You can't see the dingy street that was his playground You can't see the older, evil gang leader who showed him the ways of crime and told him to "get smart."

These are the real causes of juvenile delinquency—the causes that your Community Chest dollars are fighting. These dollars stand behind Red Feather services that offer family counsel, treatment of physical and mental illness, child guidance, family rehabilitation. And these are the dollars so sorely needed to provide places where youngsters can let off steam . . . gyms, hobby shops, camps, neighborhood clubs.

If you really want to fight juvenile delinquency instead of just sympathetically shaking your head when you read of some horrible example, won't you give—and give generously —to our Community Chest?

Remember—one pledge covers many Red Feather services. Because we have a well-managed Community Chest uniting many appeals, you are called on only once a year for all of them So when you give, GIVE ENOUGH . . . enough for ALL Red Feather services . . . enough for a FULL year.

Everybody benefits . . . Everybody gives

Yankees Sign Veteran Frank

NEW YORK—(INS)—The New York Yankees finally had an American leaguer on their 1949 brain trust today with the signing of the veteran Frank Crosetti as a coach.

Crosetti joins Milkman Jim Turner, recently named as a coach by Casey Stengel, the team's new manager. The New York club says the third coach, to be appointed soon, will not be Long George Kelly, who recently quit the Cincinnati Reds and was reported headed for the Yankees.

Bob Wren Named Baseball Mentor

ATHENS — Robert M. Wren, former high school coach and former second baseman and shortstop with the Toledo Mud Hens of the American association, has been named head baseball coach at Ohio university. He succeeds Don C. Peden, who resigned to devote his full time to his new position as director of athletics and director of physical welfare.

Mansfield Ranks High In 2 Polls

Alliance's Aviators have zoomed into the stratospheric heights of Ohio's high school football teams.

The Aviators leveled off Massillon, 14 to 0, last week to become the top ranking team in the state. Massillon had been the champion last week but Alliance made the Tigers its fifth straight victim.

Weekly International News Service and Associated Press polls had Alliance tied for the first position. However, both had different teams deadlocked for the top so Alliance gets the nod as best of the pack.

Hamilton's Big Blue was knotted with Alliance in the AP selections while the INS had Canton McKinley up there. McKinley last week knocked Toledo Scott from the unbeaten ranks, 66 to 13. Hamilton ripped through Cincinnati Hughes, 47 to 7.

THE TOP TEN

INS—	AP—
1. Alliance	1. Hamilton
2. Canton McKinley	1. Alliance
3. Middletown	3. Canton McKinley
4. Toledo Waite	4. Middletown
5. Hamilton	5. Toledo Waite
6. Mansfield	6. Massillon
7. Newark	7. Mansfield
8. Ironton	8. Newark
9. Columbus West	9 Columbus West
10. Martins Ferry and Massillon	10. Mount Vernon

BEST ENCOUNTER

Ratings as well as public sentiment ticket the Mansfield Senior high-Massillon contest "best of the week." The mighty Tigers fell almost out of the INS poll and managed to take sixth in the AP. Mansfield came up with a sixth and seventh. So the experts around the state figure that Friday's tilt in Arlin field is pretty much of a tossup.

Massillon has lost only to Alliance while Mansfield has not been beaten by an Ohio team. Springfield almost turned the trick last Friday. But the Tygers eked out a 26-to-20 victory.

The other high-ranking aggregations include Middletown, Toledo Waite, Newark, Columbus West, Ironton, Martins Ferry and Mount Vernon. The latter team has won its first five games for the second time in 51 years.

Bucyrus, featuring the marvelous Kibler twins, tied for 11th place in the Associated Press selections.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's top-flight high school grid teams, with their won-lost and scoring records:

Teams	W.	L.	Pts.	O.P.

Undefeated but tied once are Middletown, Newark, Canton Lehman and Columbus West.

In Class B, Smithfield, Mifflin, Bellville, Loudonville, Lisbon, Vermilion, Orrville, Jackson (Stark County) and Anderson Twp., have five straight; Louisville has four and Lakeside three.

Good Sports Question, 'Did He Fan Connie?'

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Satch Paige, Cleveland's venerable twirler, just won't be pinned down on his age. But he's certainly not worried about it.

While giving local sportswriters the verbal runaround at luncheon yesterday, Satch admitted that Gene Bearden once said to him:

"Tell me confidentially, Satch—how did you pitch to Connie Mack?"

MORT COOPER BOOKED—Morton Cooper (right), former pitcher of the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals, is booked by Detective George Hillen at St. Louis police headquarters on a charge of passing worthless checks. Cooper's bond of $2,000 was signed by Sam Breadon, former owner of the Cardinals, after Cooper surrendered voluntarily today at the prosecuting attorney's office here. Walter S. Berkman (center) acted as Cooper's attorney. Another detective stands behind Cooper.—(AP photo)

Coach Walker May Juggle Madison Pigskin Lineup

The Madison Rams are going through what will likely be their stiffest week of football practice as Coach Ennis Walker prepares them for their engagement Saturday night with undefeated Mt. Vernon.

Walker was not at all satisfied with the work of some of his starters in last week's 19-6 loss to Loudonville and has promised that the team will be different this trip. Underclassmen and second-stringers are getting more attention than ever before as Walker hunts for a sparkplug to insert into the lineup.

The Rams were given an intensive tackling drill yesterday in an attempt to correct last week's defensive shortcomings. Mr. Vernon is known to be one of the fastest teams in the area and speed will be necessary to grab onto the fast moving ball-carriers.

Tickets for Saturday night's game, next to the last game of the season, are now on sale at the Fox jewelry store. Delaware Willis will come here Nov. 6 for the final home contest. Other games left on the Madison slate are at Wooster next week and at Bucyrus on Nov. 13.

Bucyrus Hornets Collide Tomorrow With Akron Team

BUCYRUS,—Still smarting from their 6-0 setback handed them last week by the Shelby Blues, Bucyrus Green Hornets, semi-pro gridders, will attempt to get back in the win column when they meet the Akron Brown Street cafe eleven at Lane street field here Wednesday night.

Several changes in the remainder of the Green Hornets schedule were announced today by Carl Kaplanoff, coach, and Robert Friend, manager.

Remaining games include: Marion Angels, here; Nov. 10, Ashtabula Merchants, here; Nov. 17, Columbus 740 A. C., here; Nov. 21, Sandusky Maroons, there.

The locals have a season record of four wins and two losses.

Class B Cage League Meets

Final organization of Class B independent basketball will be made at a meeting set for 8 p. m. today at the city recreation office.

"Rec" director Stan Kamen reported that at least a dozen teams have announced interest and that the "B" league will be divided into two sections if all join.

The split season will open late next month with all games being played in the Senior High school gym. Game nights will be Monday or Wednesday, depending on decision reached at the meeting tonight.

Gene Practices

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — (UP) — Left Halfback Gene Derricotte was back in practice with the Michigan eleven today for the first time since he twisted his knee in the Michigan State game Sept. 25.

5 Men After Frank's Job

CHICAGO — (AP) — At least five baseball men are in the running for the American association presidency vacated by Frank Lane's resignation to become general-manager of the Chicago White Sox.

Michigan Club Tops College Grid Poll

By RALPH RODEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Michigan's mighty Wolverines, for the first time this season, reign as the nation's top college football team today.

The unbeaten powerhouse from Ann Arbor wrested the No. 1 spot from the North Carolina Tar Heels in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers throughout the country.

Michigan drew 74 of the 148 first place ballots while piling up 1,336 points. Notre Dame, ranked first in the opening poll, snared 1,218 points to place second to Michigan.

The Tar Heels, although snaring 32 first place votes to Notre Dame's 23, dropped to third place with 1,139 points. The Fighting Irish scored heavily in second place votes. Points are awarded on a 10 for first place, nine for second and so on down the line to one for tenth place.

RIPS NORTHWESTERN

Michigan's convincing 28-0 defeat of previously unbeaten Northwestern Saturday while North Carolina downed once victorious North Carolina State, 14-0, turned the tide in favor of the Wolverines. Notre Dame romped to a 44-13 win over Nebraska to keep its slate clean.

Like the first three teams, the next five ranking elevens also boast perfect records.

California's Golden Bears moved past Army into fourth place. The Bears, who breezed to a 42-0 win over Oregon State, gained 14 first place votes and 876 points. Army, with one first place vote, is fifth with 775 points.

Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania and Penn State all moved up a notch. The Yellow Jackets took sixth place with 627 points, Pennsylvania gained seventh with 423 and Penn State grabbed eighth with 411 points.

Missouri, 12th a week ago, jumped to ninth with 193 points. Northwestern, third last week, wound up in tenth place with 182 points. Mississippi, tenth seven days ago, tumbled to the 20th slot. The Rebels lost out when they bowed, 20-7, to Tulane.

Fatso Is Out

EVANSTON, Ill. — (UP) — A shoulder separation suffered in the Michigan game will keep Fatso Day, regular right guard, out of the Northwestern lineup indefinitely, Coach Bob Voigts announced today.

In the United States there is an average of one theater seat for every 11.2 persons.

Ohio Staters Have Worries About Signs

COLUMBUS —(AP)— If it isn't the black and blue spots on his favorite players, it's something else to worry Coach Wesley Fesler of the Ohio State university football team.

This week it's the "goodbye Harry" banner that some malcontents in the Wisconsin stands raised last Saturday while Yale was beating the Badgers, 17 to 7. The Harry being goodbyed was Harry Stuhldreher, the Wisconsin coach and one of the four horsemen of Notre Dame's backfield years ago. The Badgers have lost three of their four games this year.

Wisconsin comes here next Saturday for Ohio State's third conference game, and in yesterday's press-radio luncheon Fesler and his staff made it plain they wished the thing hadn't happened up there in Madison.

Esco Sarkkinen, who scouted the game, put it this way:

"Wisconsin is definitely a good team. Their team speed is way above ours. They have no glaring weaknesses. They have a fine morale. I can certify that the players wanted to go into the stands after Stuhldreher's hecklers.

"They'll be coming here with a desperate will to make good. I think the banner incident is bad for us. It's really going to build them up."

Cleveland Barons Meet Red Wings

Cleveland's Barons boast the American Hockey league championship and a 31-game undefeated streak but defeating the National league's Detroit Redwings is another story.

The Barons' first appearance on home ice tonight will give the Barons their fifth chance to whip the Redwings, who have come out on top in the previous four outings.

Short Tally Means Much For South

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A lot of kids scored a lot of touchdowns on Ohio's scholastic gridirons last week end, but Newt Thomas, a 15-year-old sophomore from Columbus South high, blazed over with one he'll never forget.

Newt made it with a simple one-yard sweep around end, but you'd have a tough time finding a bigger six-pointer. It marked the end of an era.

Until the 166-pound fullback winged over for his counter, South had gone through 32 straight games without a victory—but his feat set off a 19-point splurge in the last eight minutes to chalk up a 19-0 conquest over Columbus Aquinas.

All those barren years since 1944 are forgotten now, and the Bulldogs are looking forward to combat with Columbus North and East, Linden McKinley and Marietta.

Massillon 'Just Another Team'

Mansfield Senior high school men of football regard the coming game with Massillon Friday night as "just another date on the schedule."

That's the thought Tyger boss Augie Morningstar left with the 300-odd members of the Tyger booster club who attended the regular Monday night grid jamboree. "It's just another ball game and we haven't thought too much about it," Augie said. "I think the kids are down to earth this year and we're going about our regular routine this week. Massillon's just another ball club."

Morningstar advanced one reason for Massillon's defeat by Alliance. "The tension is now so great between Mansfield and Massillon that Massillon may have overlooked Alliance. They'll be keyed for us. The Massillon team has been thinking 'beat Mansfield' since the start of fall practice."

"Massillon school officials say this rivalry is as great as the Massillon-Canton McKinley series," he added.

The Senior high mentor characterized Massillon as a good hard-hitting ball club but he did not predict the outcome of the Friday batttle. However, he did tell the boosters not to sell the Mansfield team short. "We've got good kids and they'll give a good account of themselves."

The discourse on Massillon concluded Morningstar's regular report of things in football at Senior high. He first talked about the rugged game at Springfield last week which the Tygers won 26-20.

Co-feature of the program was a 20-minute concert by the Marching Tygers. J. Merton Holcombe's band featured their special arrangement of "Hold That Tiger." The band with a band—the six-piece German band — played "Clarinet Polka" and "Beer Barrel Polka.

Four tickets to the Massillon game were given away.

Pat Malone exhibited one of the "Best Lineman" trophies which the Phi Sigma Chi fraternity will award to Senior and Madison high gridders this year. Votes of the fans will decide the trophy winners.

Soviet Agents Raid Farm, Take Captive

By OKSANA S. KASENKINA
(Edited by Isaac Don Levine)

I did not dream that my letter to the Soviet consul general would result in a raid on the Tolstoy Foundation farm to get me and would bring Ambassador Panyushkin to New York to take charge of my case, leading to an international incident.

I was in a panic when I had penned that fateful letter to the consul, after contemplating my position. My failure to sail on the Pobeda was tantamount to treason, a capital crime in Soviet Russia. Most of my possessions had been shipped home, my savings were nearly gone. I had no American friends. And my shelter among the Russian refugees was collapsing about me.

These were the circumstances under which I wrote the controversial letter to the consulate. I followed the approved Soviet pattern for transgressors, made familiar by the confessions in the great purge, of paying homage to the regime and its representatives. I knew that this was the only way to save my life if I were to be returned to Russia.

I wrote that what happened had to be, that I loved my country and my people, that I was not a traitor, and that I had always hated traitors. I emphasized that I had committed no crime against the government and that I had remained loyal to it while living under capitalism abroad. I recalled the fact that my father was a working man, and that I had never acted against the regime and the dictatorship of the proletariat. To open a door back home, I felt that I could not omit a profession of loyalty to the dictatorship.

I went on to describe the campaign of ostracism against me, how I had been persecuted, how my pupils were incited against me, how I was labeled before them as a thief, all the indignities that had been heaped upon me inthe school, and the fears I felt over my missing son.

It had been hinted to me that I would lose my position as a teacher in Russia, I complained, but the consul would not even receive me.

After doing obeisance to the consul general as the representative of my government, I closed with the statement that my will had been broken and with the plea not to let me perish.

I thought that I would strike a human chord in the consular officials who had once valued me as an able teacher, and that my letter would serve as a bridge to my country. It was a foolish notion which in my suicidal mood did not seem so unreal. All that I expected from my letter was a reply by mail.

The following day I telephoned Mr. Zenzinov and arranged to meet him on Sunday. I intended to pour out my heart to him although I realized that his material condition would not allow him to be of much help to me in the event I changed my residence. Yet I was making plans in that direction.

But fate willed otherwise. Early Saturday afternoon, while I was in the kitchen shelling eggs, I was dumbfounded to find Consul Lomakin, Vice Consul Chepurykh and Anastasia Trofimova, chief clerk of the Consulate appear at my side. The blood drained out of me.

"We have the police with us!" he announced, as he addressed me warmly: "Dear Oksana Stepanovna, I got your letter. Come, come with us quick."

When I climbed up the stairs to the porch to get my things, Countess Tolstoy attempted to prevent the raiders from entering, "Don't go. They'll shoot you!!" she cried in distress, trying to hold me back.

"If they shoot me, it may be the best end for me," I replied. Lomakin had indicated to me that there was another car in his party, bringing the police along. There was nothing for me to do but to pack my grip and fetch my briefcase upstairs. I had time to destroy an article I had written for the anti-Communist Russian newspaper.

★

There was no struggle over me and no battle, such as Consul Lomakin was reported to have mentioned to the press. The pleas of Countess Tolstoy and Mrs. Knutson did arouse some disturbance among the inmates, of whom there were few able-bodied men. When I was escorted to the consul's car and put next to the fat Semashko the chauffeur at the wheel, some threats were hurled at the raiders. A couple of stones were thrown after the automobile as it sped away, but without causing any damage.

DEMAND REDS RELEASE POW'S—Japanese men and women are shown in Hibiya park, Tokyo, where thousands demonstrated as part of their hunger strike against Russia's delay in repatriating Jap prisoners of war still being held in Siberia. High government officials and party leaders spoke against the Reds. Protest demonstrations were held throughout Japan.

The consulate's station wagon, I learned from the conversation, with a group of additional men, had apparently fallen behind. On the way back to New York I was asked no questions. Chepurnykh was boasting how he got into the house without his indentity being suspected.

"I wasn't taking any chances of having my neck wrung, he laughed, "so I announced my self as Samarin, saying that I came with some friends to call on Countess Tolstoy." There was an outburst of hilarity at Chepurnykh's clever trick.

That the impersonation worked did not surprise me, as Chepurnykh could be taken for my colleague Samarin. Both are strapping blond men. It was clear, however, that the Soviet officials expected real resistance, and they were pleased at the success of the ruse and the ease with which they had carried off their quarry.

Only later, when I was already at the consulate, did I learn that instead of having the police on their side, the station wagon with the Soviet officials had been stopped by the police after Countess Tolstoy had sounded an alarm over my seizure. Upon inspection of the consular papers, the car and its occupants were permitted to proceed.

Although it may not be correct to describe my seizure as an abduction, I know that I would not have chosen the Soviet consulate as my abode of my own free will. In the circumstances, there was no choice for me but to make the best of a precarious situation. It seemed to me that my salvation lay in not resisting Lomakin's party.

In less than an hour we were at the Soviet consulate, 7 East 61st Street, off Fifth Avenue. How great was my surprise when I was led upstairs and ushered into the presence of Ambassador Panyshkin himself. He had obviously been waiting for his boys to bring the catch home. It was a portent of things to come.

Western Zone of Germany Rebuilding Rapidly, Report

Production Near Level Of 1936

Financial Expert Cites Comeback

BERLIN —(AP)— Western Germany is pulling itself together financially so fast that it may reach the 1936 level of production by next spring, an American financial expert said.

That level is generally regarded as one of the healthiest points in Germany's history. After that, Hitler and Schact—the banker—floated an inflated economy that gives a false picture of the Reich's true capacity.

The forecast was made by Jack Bennett, chief financial adviser to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor in Germany.

The new currency, plus European Recovery aid, already has pushed the German production to 67 per cent of the level of 12 years ago, Bennett disclosed. Unless something unforeseen happens, this should climb steadily to the 100 per cent mark when winter ends.

There will be some casualites in German industry before that time, Bennett predicted.

WEEDING OUT

A weeding out process of these "weak sisters" is going on now. And it is these so-called "weak sisters" which have been complaining recently that the western mark is pegged too high at 30 cents for them to pay a profit.

Among the industries which complain they can't operate with anything more than a 20-cent mark is the textile business. Only the china industry comes right out and cliams it does well on the higher mark.

Actually, Bennett said, the German businessman has been used to government subsidy since Hitler instituted his planned war economy a dozen years ago. That is what is wrong with the "cry baby businessman" today.

Bennett explained that the Third Reich government, to get foreign exchange, encouraged business to export whatever it could regardless of the price

"They had 400 rates of exchange and simply used the one that suited them depending on which country was involved."

Whether there will be a revision of the 30-cent mark downward remains to be seen.

Fund Shifts Given OK

A supplemental appropriation of $7,000 for the county tuberculosis sanatorium, which was requested by the county auditor's office, has been given the commissioners' approval.

The appropriation includes $5,000 for the maintenance of the hospital, $1 500 for compensation of employes, and $500 for maintenance of the clinic.

The board of commissioners also approved the transfer of $3,000 from the contingencies fund to the law library fund, and a $100 transfer from "other expenditures" to the stationery, dog and kennel fund.

Auto-Cycle Mishap Injures Boy, 14

Robert Pryor, 14-year-old cyclist of 59 East First street, was injured yesterday when struck by an auto driven by Jay A. McKinley, 70 Ridgewood drive.

The Pryor youth, treated at General hospital and released, suffered mild shock and lacerations of the right side of the head.

Overseas Yule Packages Must Be Mailed By Nov. 15

Christmas parcels for overseas personnel may be mailed any time from now until Nov. 15, Curtis L. Ford, acting postmaster, announced today.

Parcels destined for delivery in Japan, Korea, and the Pacific islands should be mailed not later than Nov. 1, Ford said.

Christmas cards for Army and Air Force personnel overseas should be mailed prior to Nov. 15 if they are to have a reasonable expectation of delivery before Christmas. Cards must be sent in sealed envelopes and prepaid at the first-class rate, according to the Department of the Army.

Persons sending gift parcels should endorse each package "Christmas parcel." A special effort will be made to deliver such packages in time for Christmas, Ford said.

Christmas parcels for armed forces overseas must not exceed 70 pounds in weight or 100 inches in length and girth combined.

The various services have pointed out that service men are amply provided with food and clothing and the public is urged not to include such matter in gift parcels.

Boxes for overseas mailing should be stronger than containers for mail in the United States. Parcels should be packed in boxes of metal, wood, solid fiberboard, or strong double-faced corrugated fiberboard testing at least 200 pounds.

Each box should be securely tied with strong cord, preferably by four separate pieces, two lengthwise and two crosswise, knotted at crossings.

NEED CUSHIONING

Boxes should contain sufficient cushioning material so that contents will be tightly packed. Fiberboard boxes should be securely wrapped in heavy paper and sealed boxes must bear a printed label authorizing opening for postal inspection.

Addresses must be typewritten or in ink. The post office prefers outside addresses to be handprinted directly on the wrappings of boxes rather than on labels pasted to the wrappings. It is also desirable to enclose slips of paper containing names and addresses of sender and addressee and a list of the contents in the parcel. Then if the outside address becomes defaced or the parcel is broken open, it can still be delivered.

Parcels addressed to overseas Army and Air Force personnel should show, in addition to the name and address of the sender, the full name, rank, serial number, branch of service, organization, A. P. O. number of the addressee; and the post office through which the parcels are to be routed.

Perishable matter will not be accepted and the sending of fragile articles is not advised.

Intoxicants, inflammable materials, poisons, and compositions which may kill or injure or damage the mails are prohibited.

Cigarettes and other tobacco products are prohibited for delivery through A. P. O's in Germany, France, Austria, Trieste, and Italy and through Navy Numbers 913 and 963 in Germany.

Customs declarations are required on parcels addressed to A. P. O. 58 in care of the postmaster, New York, N. Y.

Mr. Grabler was born in Meadville, Pa., but came to Mansfield 70 years ago to make his home. He was a membre of the First Lutheran church.

Surviving are his wife, Jessie; a son, Lawrence F. Grabler; four daughters, Miss Myriam R. Grabler; Mrs. Anne E. Urich, Miss Alice E. Grabler and Miss Mary Martha Grabler, all of Mansfield; five grandchildren and two great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Barbara Reed of Freeport, L. I.; and one brother, William Grabler, of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be conducted Thursday at 3 p. m. in charge of Rev. Carveth P. Mitchell, pastor of the First Lutheran church. Burial will be in Mansfield Memorial Park.

Halloween Vandals Warned

Curtis L. Ford, acting Mansfield postmaster, today warned Halloween vandals that the tearing down or destruction of rural mail boxes is a violation of a postal law and may be punished by a fine or imprisonment.

The postal law says that anyone who wilfully or maliciously injures, tears down, or destroys any mail box can be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment of not more than three years.

Convicted of Maltreatment, Sailor Granted Case Review

WASHINGTON — (INS) — A Navy chief petty officer convicted of mistreating fellow prisoners while he was a prisoner of war of the Japanese has won a supreme court review of his case.

Chief Signalman Harold E. Hirschberg sought the review on the grounds that the Navy had no right to court martial him.

He based his stand on the fact face that he was honorably discharged and re-enlisted again between his alleged brutality to his fellow prisoners and the time formal charges were brought against him.

His argument was upheld in the U. S. District Court, but was over-ruled in the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Hirschberg became a prisoner of the Japanese in May 1942, when the U. S. forces on Corregidor surrendered, and was held until he was liberated in September, 1945.

He was convicted of maltreating two other Navy men who were also prisoners and members of the work section he headed, and was sentenced to ten months confinement, reduction to apprentice seaman and a dishonorable discharge.

Board Created To Check On Rail Dispute

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman Monday created an emergency board to investigate the dispute between the nation's railroads and 16 non-operating railroad unions.

The unions are now taking a strike vote, and creation of the board is intended to head off possibility of a walkout. Under the Railroad Labor Act, a work stoppage is forbidden while the emergency board is studying the dispute.

Mr. Truman's executive order said a strike would "threaten substantial interruption to interstate commerce" and "deprive the country of essential transportation service."

The board is given 30 days to make its findings, and neither strike nor lock-out can be ordered within 60 days after the board's recommendations reach the White House.

Picketing Gets Blow

WASHINGTON—(UP)—A trial examiner for the National Labor Relations Board has ruled that mass picketing, peaceful or violent, violates the Taft-Hartley Act.

The ruling, first on this issue, was made by trial exmainer Irving Rogosin. He found that even peaceful picketing "has an intimidatory and coercive effect upon employes otherwise willing to cross a picket line."

However, Rogosin said, it is impossible to lay down a single definition of just what is and what is not mass picketing. It must necessarily be settled in accordance with the circumstances in each case, he said.

Halloween Prizes Announced

3 Bands Lined Up For Parade Nov. 1

Two Mansfield school bands and the Shelby American Legion band already have offered to march in the Help Hunt Halloween parade the night of Nov. 1, Mrs. Ada Hunt Doerr, sponsor of the celebration, announced.

The John Simpson Junior high school and the Madison high school bands will be in the parade. Other bands may be added later, Mrs. Doerr said.

In addition to the marching bands for the downtown parade, Mrs. Doerr has obtained Bill Leicy's orchestra to play for the after-parade dance at the Coliseum. As in the past, Mrs. Doerr has obtained the Coliseum and all its facilities for that night. Dancing will start about 9 p. m. and continues until midnight.

SENIORS GIVE HELP

Members of the city police force and senior class members of the Mansfield Senior high school will be on hand to help keep the dance free from rowdyism. All proceeds from the dance are to go to the children at the Richland County Children's home. In the past one of Mansfield's welfare organizations has always received a check for more than $200 as the result of the Coliseum party.

Mrs. Doerr announced the classifications in the costume and parade contests. For the best dressed girl and boy, she will give $5 each; for the most comic girl and boy, $5 each; for the best dressed man and woman, $10 each; for the most comically costumed man and woman, $10 each; most unique man and woman, $10 each; best uniformed band, $15; most comically dressed band, $15; best float $20, and largest organization $20.

In addition to prizes for the costumed paraders, there will be six prizes given at the dance. These include the best-dressed juvenile, the most comically costumed juvenile, the best-dressed man and woman, and the most comically dressed man and woman. Each winner in these classifications will receive $5.

Organizing Of Senate Main Issue

Dems Might Help Dewey

The concrete issue remaining between Mr. Truman and Mr. Dewey is whether the Democrats or the Republicans are to "organize" the Senate.

What is at stake, or at least may be at stake, in all this traveling which is so tiresome to the candidates and in all the speechmaking which is so tiresome to the audience, is not the Presidency, and not the House of Representatives, but the Senate.

The party which has a majority in the Senate organizes it. This means that it is conceded a majority in the committees and its party man, selected because he has been on the committee longer than any of his colleagues, becomes the chairman of the committee. The substantial issue, therefore, is whether Vandenberg or Connally is to be chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, Bridges or McKellar of the Appropriations, Gurney or Tydings of the Armed Services, Millikin or George of Finance, and so forth and so on.

No one is quite sure whether the contest for the Senate is in fact as close as it is in theory. But there is undoubtedly a possibility that though Dewey becomes President by a large electoral vote, and though the House has a strong Republican majority, the Senate might have a nominal Democratic majority.

This could happen because the Republicans have vulnerable candidates or the Democrats attractive candidates in Iowa, Minnesota, Oklahoma, New Mexico Tennessee, West Virginia, Wyoming, and Illinois.

As a matter of fact, in most if not all of these uncertain states the Democratic candidates are not only more attractive to independent and progressive voters but are, on the great issues, much closer to Governor Dewey, and more likely to support him.

The odd, and disconcerting, fact about the situation is that in order to keep Senator Vandenberg as chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, it is necessary for Governor Dewey, and indeed for independent voters, to work for the election of Republican Senators who have always opposed the measures which Senator Vandenberg stands for. Is this not a foolish predicament?

Is there no way out of it? Must a voter who believes it essential that Vandenberg remain where he is, witsh to see Brooks of Illinois, who always votes against Vandenberg, win over Douglas, who could be counted to vote with him?

A WAY OUT

There is a very easy way out of this predicament. A handful of Democratic Senators, who are not themselves candidates this year, have only to announce that if the Republicans win the Presidency and the House, and if the control of the Senate depends on a few votes, they will abstain from voting and permit the Republicans to organize the Senate.

Such a move would shock the party hacks. But as a matter of fact it would serve the cause of good government and also the interests of the Democratic party. The Democrats as a party have much to gain by electing able and enlightened men. But they have nothing to gain by taking nominal control of the Senate against a Republican President and a Republican House.

I do not suppose Senator Barkley can afford to sponsor such a move. But there are more independently placed Democratic Senators who could do it.

Though Governor Dewey, like Senator Barkley, could not participate in such a move, he would in fact also be helped by it. He would be under much less pressure to work for the election of Republicans who, when elected, will obstruct and oppose him. He could still go through the necessary motions of party regularity.

But he could view with a certain detachment and considerable equanimity the possibility of the defeat of men who, though they are nominally his party colleagues, are actually his formidable opponents in all that he will wish to achieve.

Richland Housewives Freeze, Can Produce

Larders Well Stocked For Winter

BUSY HOUSEWIFE—Mrs. Kenneth Ink of Lexington, R. D. 2, looks over a few of the 200 quarts of fruit and vegetables she canned this summer.

By EILEEN DEWHURST

Mrs. Kenneth Ink of Lexington, R. D. 2, is one of many housewives in the Mansfield area who are enjoying that secure feeling that comes with the knowledge that the basement is well stocked with home-canned fruit, vegetables, and preserves.

This year's bumper crops and high prices for food purchased in retail markets have encouraged area homemakers to prepare for the months when fresh fruits and vegetables will be scarce and high priced.

Mrs. Ink has canned more than 200 quarts of food since the first strawberries were ready in June. Most of the food was grown on the farm which is her home.

She has put up a variety of fruits and vegetables, including peaches, apricots, elderberries, tomatoes, beans, corn, beets and peas; as well as making sauerkraut, pickles, jellies, and preserves.

But Mrs. Ink is not yet through with her canning for this year. She expects to can both pears and meat before she considers her job finished.

"I'll probably have about 300 quarts in the basement after I finish canning meat in November and December," she said.

"But that's only about half of what I used to can when my children were all at home," Mrs. Ink added. The Inks have four children, two of them still at home.

USES 2 METHODS

Until this year Mrs. Ink did all her cooking and canning on an old oil stove. Now she has a modern electric stove and she's singing its praises loudly. She uses the "open kettle" and "hot pack" methods for most of her canning.

A number of housewives are using a newer method of preserving food this year. They're freezing fruits, vegetables and meat and storing them either in home freezers or in rented lockers in commercial freezer plants.

The home freezing method of preserving food is used for meat more than for any other food.

Mrs. Martin Frank of North Main street road says she freezes both pork and beef and thinks there' nothing like this method of preserving food. She has also frozen beans, cauliflower, and fruit this year.

Home freezing is still relatively new, but it is becoming more popular every year. The high price of home freezers and the fact that they were not generally available until recently are two of the reasons why this method has not replaced the older methods.

Peaches, tomatoes, and watery vegetables cannot be frozen satisfactorily, and freezing experts offer no advice for making preserves by this new method.

Red Cross Seeks Survivors Of War Dead Buried Overseas

The Richland county chapter of the American Red Cross has received word that the office of the Quartermaster General, U. S. Army, will close out all temporary military cemeteries overseas by the end of November.

This will bring to an end the Army's repatriation of World War II American dead.

However, the Army is still seeking instructions for the disposition of some 16,000 war dead. Next of kin have been notified but have failed to reply.

The Red Cross, which was appointed the agency for locating next of kin, urges survivors to send in their completed instruction forms if they have not done so.

Home service workers in the Richland county chapter have located and assisted approximately 40 next of kin who had not returned instructions to the Quartermaster General, according to H. E. Shoemaker, chairman of the home service division.

The workers have helped widows and parents complete the forms sent them and have made contacts to locate missing next of kin for the Army.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

PAGE SIX — MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1948

Get acquainted with your neighbors—some one of them may be planning to get a television set soon.

Noting an appearance of change in recent months, it is suggested that candidates put out a campaign song something like: "Will you love me in November as you did in May?"

State Aid In Child Care Favored

DISCUSSION of need for betterment of Richland county's child care program, following a recent survey by representatives of the state welfare department, adds interest to recent action by the Ohio department of the American Legion favoring state financial assistance to county governments "so that they can provide more adequate child welfare services for homeless, dependent and neglected children."

Excerpts from a resolution adopted at the Legion's state convention follow:

"The welfare of children has been a major concern of the American Legion for more than a quarter century. . . . Approximately one-half of the children of the nation and of the state of Ohio are children of war veterans. . . . Adequate care and services for homeless, dependent and neglected children are basic steps in the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency, toward which objective the American Legion long has worked."

The resolution also gave attention to heavy increases in the cost of county children's home and foster boarding home care in recent years.

It was directed that this resolution's objective "be made a part of the Legion's legislative program until it has been enacted into law."

Season of Autumnal Splendor Here

THE WEEK-END touch of winter makes us all appreciate the delightful autumn weather which we had a few days earlier and which is bound to return.

At no time of the year is Richland county a more attractive place than in October. The faint haze over its hills and the pendants of color running through the woodlands cannot be equaled anywhere.

Particularly, a drive southward through Mohican state park is a treat at this time of year.

As the lake developments grow at Charles Mill, Pleasant Hill, and the Clear Fork reservoir, the area will provide even more spots of pleasing autumn scenery.

And Mansfielders who are inclined to groan at summer's heat and gripe at winter's cold in this climate should make doubly sure they enjoy the splendors of the season called Fall, which is lovelier here than in any other place in the world.

Signs of Recovery In France

A SIGN that there are in France some trends toward regaining economic well-being and stability is found in the announcement that the port of Le Havre may soon become the most important petroleum port in the world. It is beginning to regain its old position in handling passengers and freight.

Le Havre was severely damaged by bombing during the war. Rebuilding of its damaged wharves is now the chief major work remaining to be done.

If the French government can attain sufficient solidity to keep the country on an even keel for a year or two, and in such condition that if it cannot aid industry and commerce at least the government will not hinder them with its recurrent crises, the economy of the nation might recover with surprising speed.

Japanese Parents Learn About PTA

A POPULAR American institution bids fair to become a feature of life in Japan. Parent-Teacher associations are being founded in many schools there.

American mothers feel at home in the buildings where their children spend so much of their early lives, and the teachers are their friends. Children are anxious to have their mothers belong to PTA, and show great pride when they hold office in the organization. The PTA forms a liaison between the school and the home, with benefit to both.

Japanese women are uncertain what to do in such a group. Their age-long attitude of subservience may take some time to relax, but the president of one group, Mrs. Takako Ukita, reports that their first meeting was held in "an atmosphere of eagerness and warm harmony."

Letting down barriers between groups is one step toward democracy. Parents who become familiar with the workings of their educational system will not be likely to stop there. They are bound to begin to take part in other community activities, and in time their interest may extend to national and world affairs.

Harry Wade presents the thought: "The old-fashioned jack-of-all-trades left a smart descendent who services a beer pump and the television set."

Still anxiously awaited is a prediction by Prophet Jim Farley on the outcome of the so-called "presidential race."

"It says here: 'Happy is the man who not only gives to the Community Chest but gives enough!'"

Raymond Moley's Analysis

Minimum of Security Can Be Guaranteed

THIS REPORTER has been reading with some care the major campaign speeches of Messrs. Dewey and Warren, to determine, if possible, what the general economic philosophy of the probable new administration will be.

This has been difficult, not because the speeches are especially profound or because they are not written in simple English. It is difficult because I am not certain whether the candidates are merely unthinkingly repeating the cliches common to political discussion over the past 20 years or whether they are really groping for a new role for government in an essentially new capitalist economy.

It is to be hoped that the latter is true and that their utterances will really clarify the issue before the campaign ends in complete boredom and banality. At the moment, it is rapidly reaching that point.

These quotations from Dewey and from Warren illustrate my point. Dewey has said: "We are all one big family. We Americans need each other and each of us needs every one else. Your next administration will provide a broad foundation of national policies designed to strengthen and unite all our people. Upon that foundation we will widen the base of regional growth, local initiative and personal opportunity and security."

And Warren, "An economically-strong America is possible only if each American family has a chance to realize its ambition for a decent, healthful, reasonably secure life. I am confident that the American people are ready and willing to help themselves toward this goal. But I believe government must act when necessary to give the people a reasonable opportunity to get the things they need for better living and cannot obtain without some degree of cooperative effort."

* * *

Just What Is Meant?

LET US assume that these able and intelligent men are not echoing some of F.D.R.'s better and more memorable expressions, but are looking beyond the New Deal to a true reconciliation between a socialized economy and a completely free system of enterprise. If so, they really mean something like this:

Our capitalist society has changed its nature over the past 20 or 30 years. The first clear expression of this came from Herbert Hoover when he was running in 1928.

He made the point that as America grew more and more productive, the American people grew more and more secure on a higher standard of life. In short, we can afford collectively to assure reasonable security. And that government has a duty to contribute to that security.

It is ironical and unjust that some of Hoover's illustrations of what he meant, such as "two cars in every garage," were so cruelly used against him. He was saying much more clearly what Roosevelt said later and what I hope Dewey and Warren are so successfully selling to the American people now.

It is idle to quibble over the principle that the government owes a minimum of security to its people. That minimum has already been established by law and it has been approved at the polls.

The immense productivity of the country makes it certain that this minimum can be guaranteed. The gross national product is 60 per cent higher than that of 1939, and our population is only 10 per cent greater.

But what is now needed and what we have a right to expect is a clearer statement from Dewey and Warren as to the methods and machinery which they intend to use in building this security in the midst of a free society.

How 'Influences' Work

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — The influences behind a President of the United States or an aspirant for the office are matters of news and information to the public so it may properly assess his decisions and acts.

Much has been said in this campaign of the labor influence behind President Truman and of the communist influence in the Henry Wallace third party. Now come some revelations of influences that have interested themselves in the candidacy of Governor Dewey in an article—"The Men Around Dewey"—by Alden Hatch in Harper's Magazine for October.

It is an entirely sympathetic article based on interviews with 19 persons, including the governor and all those in the Dewey inner circle.

After explaining how important it was for Governor Dewey to defeat Harold Stassen in the Oregon primary if he expected to be real contender for the Republican nomination, because of unexpected Dewey setbacks earlier elsewhere, Mr. Hatch tells of the plans, among them:

"The unique thing was the letter-writing campaign. Big shots in New York were persuaded to write to their little-shot associates in Oregon; lawyers to lawyers, doctors to doctors, businessmen to their opposite numbers."

And then this:

"The bankers—headed by Winthrop Aldrich—were especially energetic; as one man put it, 'they really put the screws on the boys in Oregon'."

Winthrop W Aldrich is chairman of the board of Chase National bank, sometimes known as the "Rockefeller bank," a director in numerous powerful and far-flung corporations, and a highly influential figure in financial circles. Both in the United States and internationally, who in the past has had great influence in government policy

When Mr Aldrich and his crowd "really put the screws on," that means something, as any little banker and businessman can tell you, and some not so little.

* * *

Follows Old System.

THIS, of course, is nothing new in the making of presidents, but always interesting That was the technique employed perhaps most brilliantly in recent times, because so smoothly and so quickly, to bring about the nomination in 1940 of the late Wendell L. Willkie—pressure from big New York and eastern interests on the little fellows out in the provinces, including delegates, who were beholden to what Mr. Hatch calls the "big shots in New York."

It is customary for big interests to try to "get a piece" of a presidential candidate, as it is put, say, of those who invest in an up-and-coming prize fighter or jazz singer. Sometimes they get fooled. Wendell Willkie later became very much of a disappointment.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the biggest disappointment of all perhaps, in fact a veritable shock he turned out to be to the powers-that-be who knew his background, thought him a nice, amiable, harmless fellow and believed he would "remain true to his class."

He came close, for a time, to his announced objective of moving the financial capital of the nation from New York to Washington. But the war moved it back when big business and the military had their way in planning war production so that those who had not only kept, but got a little more.

FDR had to compromise with the big boys, or thought he had to, to get them behind the war. The whole story is told in detail in the highly interesting and significant new book—"The War Lords of Washington"—by Bruce Catton who saw it all from the inside.

They were courteous and courtly to Harry Truman and he was beguiled. They moved in on Washington in a big way and began to get what they wanted, with much help from the 80th Congress.

And Mr. Truman, alas, now is waking up too late to find them all ganged up on him—on the other side, alongside Tom Dewey.

Tom Dewey may fool them, too. For that we must wait and see. They apparently think they have "a piece" of him.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Builders of Pentagon Roads Forget Tax

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Around the Army's Pentagon, largest office building in the world, winds a network of modernistic macadam highways which have now become the center of one of the capital's most interesting hush-hush income-tax scandals.

For the men who built these highways, W. J. "Doc" Hardy and F. McKenzie Davison of the Arlington Asphalt company, apparently did not feel they should pay full taxes on the profits they made from Uncle Sam. In fact, treasury agents who finally caught up with the pair, estimate that they quick-changed Uncle Sam out of $500,000.

Probably that explains a yacht, a home in Florida and a new mansion in Virginia.

However, the two Virginia constructors have been frantically pulling wires on Capitol Hill, especially with Virginia's Senator Harry E. Byrd, and for some time it looked as if their tax case was stalled.

Some of the tricks used by the Virginia asphalt kings to duck income taxes were just as devious as the cobweb of highways they built around the Pentagon.

For example, they made out checks for several thousand dollars to W. W. Thomas and S. M. Redd, contractors, who later gave T-men affidavits that they never received the checks.

What Hardy and Davison did was forge endorsements and cash the checks themselves, then deduct the amount of the checks from their income-tax returns.

Significantly, the man at whose bank the checks were cashed was Alan B. Prosise, president of the Arlington Trust company, who happens to be a partner with Hardy and Davison in their subsidiary Atlantic Smokeless Coal company. Prosise is also under investigation by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

* * *

Cadillacs and Mansion.

THE two kings of Virginia asphalt also made out other false invoices and vouchers which they deducted from their income taxes, and juggled funds carelessly between their private accounts and the company's account. Both Mrs. Hardy and Mrs. Davison received a weekly salary of $75 from Arlington Asphalt, though not seen working for the company.

Hardy also used workers, paid out of company funds, to help build his palatial new Virginia mansion; while Davison drives Cadillac and Lincoln automobiles, both owned by the company.

He keeps another company Cadillac at his winter home in Miami. Queried about this, Davison replied:

"You'd be surprised at the company business we have in Florida."

To investigate Hardy and Davison, the bureau of internal revenue sent six agents simultaneously to grill key witnesses. As the T-men closed in, Hardy and Davison hurriedly hired a tax attorney, I. William Stempil, formerly of the bureau of internal revenue and who knew all six agents personally. But Stempil got nowhere.

So Hardy and Davison put another high-powered legal firm on the payroll—William Clineburg, Darius Prince and Howard Vesey. It happens that Clineburg also was a former attorney for the bureau of internal revenue.

* * *

Byrd Goes Into Reverse.

THEN the Arlington asphalt owners pulled their ace card and called on Senator Byrd for help. J. W. Barton, partner in the subsidiary coal company, boasted that Byrd would "fix" the case; but when this careless talk got out, Barton was called on the carpet by Hardy and Davison and a denial was issued.

That began a rash of strangely conflicting stories. When tax attorney Stempil learned Hardy and Davison had been seen going into Byrd's office, he admitted they had consulted Byrd about their tax troubles.

Davison, however, said his call on Byrd had nothing to do with taxes.

Later, confronted with Stempil's statement that taxes were discussed with Byrd, Davison revised his statement and explained they had gone to see Byrd "principally about another matter," but had talked about the tax case. Hardy also confessed they had talked to the senator, but insisted he had refused to help.

Yet Byrd emphatically denied any knowledge of the case. Queried by this column about his talks with Hardy and Davison, the senator from Virginia snorted:

"I never met them. I never even heard of them."

Next day, however, Senator Byrd's office telephoned to say that the senator's memory had been bad that he had talked with Hardy and Davison, though he refused to help them.

When Davison was questioned about his tax troubles, he denied at first that he was behind to the tune of $500,000.

"Why, what would we have done with half a million dollars?" exclaimed Davison.

Of course, he might have used some of it on his winter home in Miami, his home in Washington, and his yacht, the "Mary Mac" on the Potomac. Later he admitted that he was having income-tax troubles, though declining to say to what extent.

Assignment: America

As Seen By Farm Boy

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON — A former farm boy feels kind of funny nowadays in the new Washington headquarters of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

It's strictly a plush layout, with deep carpets, modernistic furniture and softly-tinted walls. One step inside and you get the impression that you're in the presence of Big Business—with two capital B's.

And, with approximately a million and a half members, it is big business. Moreover, its purpose here in Washington is to represent those farm members in matters both legislative and executive.

The new layout results from changes brought about by Iowa's Allan B. Kline who succeeded Alabama's Ed O'Neal as Farm Bureau president this year. The old place was kind of crowded, tended to get dusty and was a long haul from Capitol Hill. And the old crowd seemed more casual.

Whether the new Farm Bureau regime will better represent the membership in these times remains to be seen. Certainly there's no denying the rumors that a new government regime is moving into Washington!

But one particular farm boy, who has several times crossed both big ponds and often seen Paree, still finds himself uncomfortable in the midst of the new Farm Bureau atmosphere here in Washington, and, in a way, it's ironic.

Out in central Illinois, I am part-owner of a farm which has been in the family since long before the big elm tree by the pump was only a riding switch stuck carelessly in the wet soil by my thirsty great-grandfather. Out there, one of my brothers is a full-time farmer and the other brother farms as much as he can with one hand while teaching vocational agriculture with the other.

Both belong to the Farm Bureau. And for good reason.

* * *

From Small Beginning.

WHEN the Farm Bureau was formed, more than a generation ago, we were walking three-quarters of a mile to Martin school—named for another ancestor who had donated the land. (If all this sounds overdone, it has, with apologies, a purpose. We were farming people, from back in the days when the pioneers had to do business with those Indians who were friendly.)

After supper at night, my brothers, my sisters and I heard our father talk about this new federation which gave farmers the power of united strength without robbing them of their individual independence. To him, both points were important, for ours was a small farm, although adequate by standards in that section.

It was the Farm Bureau of which he spoke, and he was a charter member. In the years that followed, he showed us how it often dispensed with the costly middleman by operating on a sort of cooperative basis in marketing and the like. Through it, we sold our milk and crops for a better price. We bought seed and gasoline and kerosene and got a year's end rebate which represented what otherwise would have gone to the middleman.

As time went on, Dad—who died a decade ago—spoke of the Farm Bureau's political benefits. He pointed out how, by virtue of its large membership, it was becoming a force to be reckoned with in elections, and how, on legislation involving tariffs and the like, it could even make itself felt in the nation's capital.

But always he spoke in terms of small, home-owning farmers, or renters who were working the soil and bucking the seasons to finally buy farms for themselves.

And among such people, he was a leader, a leader so great that on the day he died, our neighbors stood in the orchard west of the house and asked us—his sons—what they should do now.

If you're a former farm boy, and the son of a far-seeing farmer, you stand in the plush headquarters of the American Farm Bureau Federation today, and you hope that—despite all this new big business atmosphere—the organization your father pioneered still represents the small farmer, and not the huge thousand-acre agricultural firms.

But, as you hope, you also wonder.

Timely Editorial

Greeting Suggested.

A New York publicist, Ed Rosenbaum, has just come in with a suggestion that, if adopted, might go far toward bolstering a brotherhood of man. The idea is simple. In greeting or in leaving somebody, say "God bless you," instead of the conventional "Hello" or "Good-by." This legend could be used in business and personal correspondence. It could fit into advertisements. It could become universal.

Obviously, a person saying "God bless you" would have nothing disagreeable in his mind. And, according to Mr. Rosenbaum, the sound of these words would put listeners into a beatific mood, so that the world would be more full of human kindness. — Boston Traveler.

How Their Garden Grew

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Dear Mr. Byers:

We are still talking about our visit with you last June. Then you said it would be interesting to know how much our small garden (about one-tenth of an acre) would yield this summer, and now at the end of the summer, I will t , to tell you of some of the crops.

We started our garden this spring with about 3 sq. yds. of compost and about 8 bushels of earthworms and the earth they had lived in all winter.

We feel our most outstanding crop was the peas. One-half pound of seed yielded 100 lbs peas in the pod; next, 36 tomato plants, 12 bushels; corn, 6 rows about 50 feet long — we ate, gave to neighbors and friends, canned 92 pints, and dried 1½ gallons. Onions, 1¾ bu. Irish potatoes, from 30 lb. seed, 5½ bu. Jerseys and yams, 55 lbs; green Hubbard squash, 45 lbs.; peppers, 3 bu; green beans, limas and dried beans, all we could use; strawberries, 74 quarts; black raspberries, 35 quarts; yellow and red raspberries, all he could use; hazelnuts, 20 bushes, 14 quarts; carrots, beets, lettuce, turnips, spinach, asparagus, cabbage, no record.

Of Regal lily seeds sown May, '47, about 1500 grew and 12 bloomed this summer The pleasure we have had from our reconverted garden reverts back to you and your writings for through you we were led to this way . . . With kindest thoughts to you and yours,

We remain,

Aldine, Emma and Martha Fuhrer, Mansfield, Ohio.

* * *

Dear Fuhrers, Inc:

Thank you for saying that I had a part in your successful garden. On the one occasion when I visited it I was impressed by the thoroughness and the careful planning and cooperation, as well as by the tangible results of the organic method.

As I understand it, a permanent, fertile, whole soil is the result of a three-fold method: Control erosion, by use of contour cultivation, trash or mulch farming, grass in the rotation; keep natural bacteria and worms alive, since they digest the soil to a form most easily available to plants: supply minerals and trace elements that are lacking, since not even worms can create chemical elements that just aren't there!

Since most disease is caused by lack of certain elements, we are all victims of "hidden hunger," to some degree.

Thank you for everything. I shall hope to bring Mrs. Byers over to your place for some more talk.

Cordially and sincerely,

BYERS.

As Cerf Tells It

When the tabloids sent photographers to snap that lady in Pennsylvania who had 26 children, one of them asked, "How on earth could you find time to take care of 26 kids?" The lady answered, "When I had the first one, it took all my time; what more can 26 do?"

Ashland Gets Bus Service

Council to Scrap Old Opera House

(By a State Correspondent)

ASHLAND—Within the span of three short hours Monday night, Ashland city council assured the city of disposal of the old Opera house, erection of a new city building and inauguration of city-wide bus service.

Disposal of the Opera house was provided in ordering an ordinance authorizing sale of the building to the highest bidder, with an amendment to exclude the adjoining small city park.

The new city building was assured with council's decision to earmark proceeds from the Opera house sale for construction of a new city building on another site, the construction to start, if possible, during the tenure of the present council.

Bus service was given initial approval with passage of the first reading of an ordinance giving the Ashland Transit Lines, Inc., a 20-year franchise for operation of bus lines covering the entire city as far as possible.

Operators of the proposed line, Willard Fry and James Steutzler, announced, through their attorney, Howard S. Lutz, that the lines would be in operation before Christmas if council will pass the ordinance on its second and third readings at the next council meeting. Bus fare is stipulated at ten cents, including transfers, with a five-cent rate for school children purchasing $1 fare books. The service will operate in four loops, each one including the factory section in its circuit. Half-hour service will be provided from any single point. Center and Main streets will be the starting point for all four loops, according to the franchise ordinance.

OBJECTION OVERRULED

Disapproval of the council's move to sell the Opera house by the Ashland county real estate board representatives at the meeting was met with an announcement that a group of local men may purchase the site to erect a combined business block and hotel. To the board's insistence that sale of the building be submitted to voters, councilmen advised the real estate men to initiate a referendum within 30 days after passage of the ordinance, bringing the question up for a special election. Council itself cannot initiate a referendum by petition, it was explained.

The real estate men, headed by R. A. Brown, president, rescinded their objections after hearing of the proposed hotel proposition. They explained their chief interest was to prevent erection of an unsuitable building on the prominent site.

Jayteen Club Set to Open In Crestline

CRESTLINE — At a meeting of the board of directors, plans were made for the opening of the local Youth Center for Thursday.

Tom Prater, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced that he was able to secure the service of a local orchestra for the opening in addition to numerous other festivities.

An invitation has been extended to all neighboring teenagers to join in the fun.

Board OK's Appointments

Two appointments and 10 salary adjustments were approved by the Mansfield board of education yesterday.

Mrs. Amy Briggs, 139 Bowman street, was appointed as a teacher at the Bowman school and Miss Shirley Fisher was named as assistant to the secretary.

Salary adjustments were made for the following teachers who completed six or more college credits during the past year:

Mrs. Thelma Davis and Mrs. Theo Brown, Carpenter school; Miss Margaret Kuppinger, Mrs. Alice Schwed and Mrs. Gussie Cole, Bowman school; Miss Elsie McFadden and Robert Glass, John Simpson junior high school; Miss Reba Robinson, Woodland school; Miss Marie Hoover, Newman school, and Richard Cole, Senior high school.

New Street to Woodland Sought

Petitioners Ask School Route

A petition from 26 southwest-side residents for a street to permit easier access to Woodland school by Cline avenue district pupils was submitted to the board of education yesterday.

The petitioners protested against the proposed construction of a road from Cline avenue to Davis road which cut off 137 feet of the east side of the school property.

They suggested that a road be constructed from Bartley and Cline avenues to the intersection of Shepard and Davis roads.

The board took under advisement a request from the YWCA for the use of the Senior High school pool for swimming classes.

GETS $1,082,178

The board also approved a report from the county auditor stating that the Mansfield school district will receive $1,082,178 in revenue from taxes in 1949, $260,670 of which will be used for bond retirement.

Mrs. Myrtle Houston, who holds the Mansfield school bus contract, was granted $155 per day for 15 buses instead of $123 per day.

A flat rate of $5 per night for use of the Junior or Senior High school gymnasiums was set by the board.

Kiwanis to Hear Boys' Village Story at Session Thursday

Rev. C. E. Kerr, head of Boys' Village near Wooster, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis club Thursday noon.

Boys' Village, the activity recently started by Rev. Kerr, is patterned after the famed "Boys' Town" of the late Father Flannagan. It is a home for orphaned and wayward boys and is becoming one of the successful juvenile projects in the state.

Rev. Kerr will be introduced to Kiwanians by Charles J. Fuchs, who will act as chairman for the day.

At the meeting, to be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, plans will also be discussed for the fourth annual Mansfield Regional Safety conference, to which Mansfield Kiwanis club members are invited.

Hi-Y Club Hears Talk

The senior Hi-Y club met last night at the YMCA and heard Richard Van Voorhis, chaplain of the club, speak on "Spirit, Mind and Body." He told the boys the organization's aim was to improve the religious life, education and health of the members.

James Dickson, Robert Perez, James Kible, Louis Gregorio, Alan Poorman and Alan Leitenburger were appointed members of the float committee to prepare a float for the Halloween parade.

Richard Dillon, the club's president, announced that the hayride, postponed last week because of rain, would be held Nov. 13.

Churches Asked to Give Their Approval

Group Offers Religious Education Plan

If Mansfield's churches approve, the city will have a full-time teacher of religious education for instruction outside of school hours.

That was the decision reached last night at a meeting of the Council of Religious Education when members met in the First Lutheran church to hear a report on a new instruction plan.

The plan was set up by a committee which included Paul Lee, chairman, Mrs. V. C Stamets, Mrs. Lisle Ish, Mrs. Charles Ray and W. C. Mansfield.

The plan as tentatively accepted last night by the council, will divide the city into five districts. Classes will be conducted in a church in each of these districts, once each week, by an experienced teacher of religious education.

Last night the plan was referred back to the original committee for further study of zones, churches and teacher recommendations. When plans are completed, they will be presented for final approval to the council and from the council will be taken before the Ministerial association for consideration.

If the ministers of the city approve the plan in its final analysis, it will be presented to all the churches of the city and they will be asked to designate their share in the financial support of such a program.

READY IN NOVEMBER

Members of the committee hope to have plans ready to present to the ministers at their November meeting.

In any event, it is not expected that classes will be ready to start before Jan. 1.

If the plan is finally adopted by all groups concerned, it will mean that seven churches in the city will have religious education classes.

Classes Thursday afternoons have been started by the Main Street Evangelical church and on Wednesday afternoons by the First United Presbyterian church.

Blasts at 'Union Racket' Found In Lower Echelon of Organization

NEW YORK—The citizen cannot realize how vicious the union racket is in its massive entirety unless he learns first how bad it is in its details. William Green, the president of the American Federation of Labor, and other ancient political fakers, bellow about the rights of labor and the "menace to freedom" of the Taft-Hartley law, but they always refuse to discuss the corruption and the political badness of the individual unions which pay their tainted salaries.

Years ago, Green made the mistake of accusing me of exaggerating the corruption of his tributary unions. I rubbed his nose in it, good. I took a hand in sending to prison about 20 of his most powerful and predatory fellow-servants of the faceless fool who marches in the Labor day parades and showed up, altogether, about a hundred unregenerate jail-birds.

They included one who actually had been convicted of stealing the coppers off the eyes of his departed subjects by robbing the widows' and orphans' benefit funds, but had been reinstated as national treasurer as soon as Al Smith let him out of Sing Sing.

It might seem strange that Green could continue to speak in the name of millions of union workmen but the fact that he has not been repudiated is not entirely the fault of the rank and and file. He is protected by a union political system almost as big in proportion to the little individual as the government of the nation. In actual fact, it is bigger and stronger because most of the union constitutions are rigged against the rank and filer. Most of the great tyrants who run the unions, like kings and and European dictators, hold office for life—or until Pegler sends them to prison.

I have often dealt with the criminality of an old swindler and alumnus of Atlanta prison named Ben Pross who runs the liquor unions of New York and New Jersey under charters originating in Green's A.F. of L. and paying tribute or loyalty to his outfit. Notwithstanding revelations which would have driven a man out of any position of prominence in any decent sector of our society, Pross extends his power day by day.

He is beneath shame, so degraded that he brazenly exploits the name of charity knowing that even if he gets caught, as he has been, by me, he is no worse for that than he was before. If he hadn't got caught, he might have built a fake reputation as a great-hearted friend of the cancer patients and the wild little slum kids playing stick-ball among the trucks.

Thus, he might have been able to get a full pardon and recover the privilege of the vote. When I caught him, he was no worse off than before.

★

Now here is our subject, Mr. Pross, with a new union. It is called Wine and Liquor Store Employes' union, local 122, affiliated with the Distillery, Rectifying and Wine Workers' International union of the A. F. of L.

Local 122 is rounding up retail liquor store clerks. But the contract which Pross is forcing on the owners of a thousand stores provides that only one person in each store may be exempt from the union's jurisdiction. If a husband and wife own a store and do their own work, one or the other must join. One then becomes the employer, the other the employe, forbidden to reveal union secrets or discuss union matters with the boss. If the owners are partners, one must join and again the mutually hostile status of employe versus employer is fixed. The union is the sole judge of the "good standing" of its own members and may expel them for the most capricious and flimsy reasons or for no substantial reason whatsoever.

2 Escapers Surrender To Police

Honor Camp Inmates Returned to OSR

Two of three Osborn honor camp inmates who fled the farm Sunday surrendered to Lorain police last night in a telephone message from a Lorain restaurant.

The two, identified as Robert Ward, 24, of Butler county and Richard Elkins, 24, of Jackson county, called the Lorain police station from the restaurant and asked to be picked up. Inspector Paul Cleaver, in charge of the police radio room, said a phone voice asked him:

"Want to pick up a couple of escaped trusties from a prison farm?"

"Who are you?" asked the inspector.

The voice boomed back:

"I'm one of the guys and hurry."

SIX MONTHS ADDED

Both Ward and Elkins were returned to the Mansfield reformatory today where they face the additional six months' sentence for voluntary surrender after escape.

Their third companion, Edward Brewer, 20, of Hamilton county, was reported still at large.

OSR officials said Ward was received on March 8, 1946 to serve one to 15 years for burglary and larceny; Elkins was received on April 7, 1945 to serve one to 20 years for auto theft, and Brewer was received Feb. 5, 1948 to serve one to 15 years for burglary.

Residents of the Osborn farm recently petitioned state officials to erect a fence around the honor camp to prevent trusties from walking away.

A Red Feather Agency

Visiting Nurses Find Patients Courageous

If Mansfield's Visiting Nurses were asked to choose their favorite patient, it's fairly certain their votes would be cast for an 85-year-old woman whose sunny disposition and wonderful sense of humor they attribute to her Irish ancestry.

They visit her twice each day to place clean dressings on her swollen and misshapen leg which is infected with gangrene poisoning.

During their morning calls they not only put bandages on her leg, but also put specially-prepared heavy padding on the bottom of her infected foot to permit her to get around the house and do her household chores.

She prepares the meals for both herself and a roomer, whose rent supplements the old-age pension she receives.

In the afternoon she usually spends most the time working on a hooked rug which she is making for her "sweetheart," Miss Anne Thomas, supervisor of the Visiting Nurses association.

As Miss Thomas explains it, "She is putting many hours' work on that rug, and all because, on numerous occasions, I have not only cared for her leg, but many times have helped her get her supper. Knowing what pain she must be in all the time, I have never ceased to marvel at her wonderful sense of humor in the face of an incurable ailment. She's just wonderful, that's all."

But on the other hand, that cheerfulness is not confined to just one of their patients, Miss Thomas says.

BEDFAST 17 YEARS

Out on the East side of town lives another elderly woman who has been ill for the past 22 years with deformative arthritis, and for the past seventeen years she has been bedfast and practically helpless. Every part of her body has been twisted and bent with the affliction, but a more alert or well-adjusted patient would be hard to find, Miss Thomas says.

She receives full care from the Visiting Nurses twice each week, and the highlight of the week for her is the gift of a half-dozen magazines which the nurse takes to her.

Her daughter-in-law, with whom she lives, gives her excellent care during the remainder of the week, and, according to Miss Thomas, a lot of her happiness is derived from her two-year-old granddaughter, who spends many hours playing at her "Grandma's" bedside.

One of the most appealing cases Miss Thomas describes is the young mother whose daughter was born at eight months. Birth weight was only three and a half pounds, so she was placed in the hospital incubator for three weeks, at the end of which she weighed five pounds. The mother had no knowledge of caring for a premature baby, so the Visiting Nurse was on the job daily until at the end of a week's instruction the mother felt capable of caring for her infant.

Three registered nurses comprise the Visiting Nurses staff, which was reorganized just a year ago. They are Mrs. Thomas, as supervisor; Mrs. Dorothea Smith, and Miss Hazel Rees, staff nurses.

Last month each of the nurses averaged eight calls per day during the entire month. They are on duty between 8:30 a. m. and 5 p. m. All calls are made under the supervision of Mansfield doctors.

The Visiting Nurses is a Red Feather agency of the Mansfield Community Chest, which is now conducting its annual campaign to raise $122,635.

Handles 30 Each Session

Speeds Up Appointments

The facilities of the Mansfield Cancer Clinic have been expanded to examine 30 patients per clinic session instead of 20 as in the past, it was revealed at a meeting of the Richland county unit of the American Cancer society last night.

Richard Wolford, president of the society, reminded the public that clinic sessions are held Tuesdays at 7 p. m. at the Mansfield General all hospita appointments can be made by calling 2291-6 from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily, except Saturday and Sunday .

Authoritative literature, pamphlets and information about cancer furnished by the society, can be obtained from the city-county health department in the city building or by writing the department requesting information or written material.

SPEED APPOINTMENTS

Appointments can now be had within much less time than formerly, Cancer Clinic officials said today. Because of the increased load each night, patients are not having to wait so long as formerly for appointments, they said.

Dr. W. E. Wygant, head of the clinic, said today that patients who came to the clinic when it started a year ago are now due for a re-check and should make appointments as quickly as possible. Men are particularly lax, he declared.

At the society's meeting last night, Mrs. Ambrose Middleton was appointed delegate to the education work shop of the Ohio division of the American Cancer society to be held in Cleveland Oct. 26 and 27.

Chinese Takes Look at America, Decides It's Good Place To Live

NEW YORK—(AP)—What does a travel agent do on vacation? Why, he travels.

And so, after 26 years of telling other people where to go and what to see, Norman L. Chinhoy came to the United States to see for himself what we had here.

Chinhoy is really a product of the mysterious east. He is a Chinese who was born in Australia, speaks Spanish, carries a British passport, and earns his living as a travel agent for the Peruvian International Airways in Lima. This accounts for every continent except Africa.

★

Concluding a six-week, coast-to-coast visit—not a Cook's tour—Chinhoy put his general impression of the United States in two polite words:

"It's good."

With Oriental caution he qualified this endorsement by adding:

"The people are too commercialized."

But he though the North Americans must also be very honest, as he saw few policemen around.

In Peru there are many police men—very many," he said gravely.

Chinhoy, a slim, pleasant man of 52, flew from Peru to Washington. He managed to pass through the nation's capital without being tagged with either a Dewey or a Truman button, and visited California before coming here.

He said there was one nice thing about his trip to New York city. It convinced him he liked San Francisco better

"Too much rush here," he said. His other complaint against Manhattan:

"Too many Chinese laundries. Too many Chinese restaurants."

In South America, he explained, the Chinese mix more with the general population and hold a greater variety of jobs.

"The Chinese here make more money, but they spend more. Their level of living is about the same as it is in Peru."

For more than a quarter century Chinhoy has specialized in arranging trips back to their homeland for the 11,000 Chinese who live in Lima.

The post-war inflation has knocked him out of one profitable source of business. In the old days Chinese families often escorted the bones of dead members back to Canton, where they could rest in calm with their hallowed ancestors.

"But not anymore," said Chinhoy sadly. "It costs too much."

Few of the 500 persons for whom he acts as agent each year take anything with them to China. But they return laden with chinaware, silks and Chinese tea.

Farming Methods Termed 'Wasteful'

Stating that American agriculture is largely "wretched and wasteful," Richland county's Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield held out hopes that American soil would provide food for the world last night as he spoke before the New York Herald Tribune Forum.

"We could in this country provide food for five times our present population on the land now under cultivation," Bromfield said.

Bromfield, who has championed conservation for the past several years, addressed the forum along with Paul G. Hoffman, economic cooperation administrator, and presidential adviser Bernard M. Baruch.

Hoffman labeled the Marshall Plan as "the most important and positive conservation project ever deliberately undertaken." He said the general aims of the Marshall Plan are:

"To conserve life, to conserve human and physical resources and to conserve and strengthen an economic system and a social system worthy of man's dignity."

He added that "above and beyond these purposes, high as they are, this is a program to promote peace."

MUST AVOID WAR

"I for one," Hoffman declared, "believe that unless we can with honor avoid war, all planning for conservation will be waste, void and without significance.

Our one great hope to avoid war is, I believe, to keep our free America strong and prosperous, to help the free nations of western Europe regain their strength and prosperity, and to bind the free, strong, prosperous nations of the western world together into a union so firm that no aggressor will dare to march against it."

Hoffman said the nations of western Europe have made a "magnificent beginning" toward cooperative effort.

Boosters' Club For Teachers To Be Considered at Meeting

A general invitation to Mansfielders interested in the promotion of better teaching in city schools has been extended by the Mansfield Mathematics Council for their initial meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. at the John Simpson junior high school.

Ralph Juniper, president of the newly-organized council, said today that it is hoped to form a "boosters' club" for the promotion of better teaching, particularly of mathematics, similar to the ones already actively supporting the band and athletics.

"This organization is not just for teachers," Juniper said. "We hope to have a membership of at least 400, including everyone interested, who may serve not only as active members but associates if they wish. We want everyone interested to join us Thursday night when V. E. "Sam" Vining talks on "Straight Lines and Curlicues."

Juniper said the group hopes to bring nationally-known mathematics teachers here to present new and vital interpretations which would be entertaining as well as instructive.

The Mothers club of the Prospect school will serve refreshments, and in order to estimate the number present, it is requested that all those who plan to attend the meeting, contact the council representative in one of the city schools.

HOUSE-GARDEN EDITOR ADDRESSES MANSFIELDERS

Mansfield Garden Center Sponsors Public Luncheon and Lecture at Leland Hotel.

RICHARDSON WRIGHT, editor of House and Garden, charmed his audience of 250 women Monday afternoon when he spoke on "Design for a Small Place," in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Through the efforts of Mrs. E. R. Hartman, the Garden Center of Mansfield was able to present this noted writer and garden authority to the women of this city.

Luncheon was served attractively at long tables which were beautifully appointed with fall flowers and shrubs. The long speaker's table, where the guests of honor and the 14 garden club presidents of Mansfield were seated, was lovely with a huge arrangement of rust and bronze chrysanthemums, fall berries, holly and fall leaves.

The Mansfield women, who composed the decorating committee, were Mrs. Harry Longsdorf, Mrs. Derl Arehart, Mrs. Alan Tappan, Mrs. R. J. Welsh, Mrs. C. V. McConnell, Mrs. David Shelley and Mrs. Henry Paulsen.

Mrs. George Price, president of the Mansfield Garden Center, presided and introduced the guests of honor. Among them was Mrs. Robert Mehl of Ashland, president of the Garden club of Ohio, who spoke briefly to the group.

Guests were in attendance from Norwalk, Ashland, Mt. Vernon, Shelby and Akron.

Mr. Wright, who speaks informally with a dry wit and humorous vein, gave his audience an insight of the modern woman gardener. He said: "The small garden is the coming thing," but he urged the woman gardener to take stock of herself and her capabilities before planning and planting her garden.

Among his suggestions were the pointers to figure the cost of the planting desired, the cost to maintain and decide how much work you care to put into it.

"The best way to plan a garden," said Mr Wright, "is to stand at your doors and windows and design it from there. To have an effective and enjoyable garden," he said, "is to have each plot or garden a room of itself, which gives it character.

In his interesting resume of garden planning he gave the principles which are necessary to make an attractive, hardy and stimulating garden.

Dry Cleaners Give Tips To Wise Women Shoppers

By MARIAN WEST

When you purchase a garment do you take the cleaning factor into consideration?

Thrifty Mansfielders do because it will save them a lot of grief in the long run. The initial cost of a garment is almost negligible when compared to the expense of maintaining it in wearable condition

But in order to be a smart shopper, it's necessary to gain a little insight into the cleaning process and its effect upon materials and their accessories One local cleaner said:

"The public obviously has the wrong conception of the possibilities of cleaning wearing apparel."

He went on to say that this probably originated some years ago when fabrics were of silkworm silk and lambs pure wool. They were properly dyed and constructed so that they would respond to cleaning methods, either dry or wet, without freak complications."

Did you girls know that your modern date frock fabrics originate from various kingdoms such as animal, vegetable, mineral and chemical? And even fibers of milk properties glass elements, corn products, wood, grass, shellac, lacquer, gelatine, and paper are used to construct garments Such fabrics will not respond to cleaning operations as the garments of natural sources did years ago.

Those spots that just won't come out — here's the reason why: A cleaner here said: "These fabrics will become oxidized when exposed to acid, alkaline elements, fountain drinks and alcoholic mixtures. And they become a part of the material and dye, making it impossible to remove or completely reduce their affects."

In all cleaning establishments the dry cleaning operation is used as the initial process because it is the least harmful method of renovation. The dry solvents consist of petroleum, perfected by the refining companies to meet with exacting specifications The synthetic dry solvents known as chlorinated solvents are widely used here in Mansfield.

"But they are a means of removing only limited deposits," the manager of one of our plants said. "To remove food, candy, syrups, fruit juices, soda fountain drinks and liquor, the steam gun must be used."

This modern device which is the least harmful method of spotting, is still not infallible The garments are placed on the steam spotting board, and instantly on the application of this spray gun many of the following tragedies take place.

(1) Buttons and ornaments deposit coloring matter throughout the garment.

(2) Many garments lost their color complexion due to dye used unsuited to the style of the fabric.

(3) Black buckram, which is being used in many garments regardless of color, will lose its dye matter and appear on the surface of the garment.

"Don't let the 'Dry Clean Only' label fool you," a Mansfield plant owner cautioned. Garments consisting of mixtures of wool, cotton and rayon, made into sport shirts, dresses and slacks carry this label —but it is a misrepresentation. Manufacturers are aware that vegetable fabrics do not respond to any process of dry cleaning, and by virtue of this label the customer is led to believe differently.

"Ninety per cent of the tragedies in cleaning have been solely due to shoddy material, inferior trimmings and the application of unnecessary black buckram," a Mansfield cleaner commented. "And the condition is steadily growing worse," he added.

When garments are accepted for cleaning and processing, such operations will remove the dirt, grease and natural food deposits. It is not supposed to renew the garment or remove scars, oxidation and eradicate all stains or faded parts

To do this is as impossible as it would be to remove scars, freckles and birthmarks from the body in the process of bathing.

The removal of oxidized stains, mercurochrome, nail polish, inks and the like should be credited to the good will of your local cleaner, as it is an additional skillful operation.

Miss Rose Gauliente Becomes Bride of Irvin Schemansky

ST. MARGARET MARY CATHOLIC CHURCH was the scene of the wedding of Miss Rose Gauliente, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gauliente, 5097 St. Clair avenue, Detroit, Mich., former residents of Mansfield, and Irvin Schemansky, son of Mrs. Augusta Schemansky, Harper avenue, Detroit, Oct. 9 at 10 a. m.

The Rev. Father Francis Lafever officiated for the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with bouquets of mixed flowers and palms.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an off-white heavy satin gown with a butterfly bustle extending into a long train. The neckline was sheer with a French applique cuff. The long sleeves came to points over the hands. The long French silk illusion veil was held in place with a queen's crowd of orange blossoms.

Miss Gauliente carried an arm bouquet of virgin lilies.

Miss Claudine Colangelo, of Mansfield, a friend of the bride, was her maid of honor. She wore a taffeta rose gown with a sheer neckline and a scalloped bertha. Miss Colangelo wore matching gauntlets. Her headpiece of the same color was trimmed with ostrich tips. She carried a colonial style bouquet of pink roses and baby mums. Miss Marie Gauliente, sister of the bride, Miss Helen Schemansky, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Grace Trupiano, friend of the bride, and Miss Clare Oliverio, cousin of the bride from Berkeley, California, were her bridesmaids. They wore matching dresses of cornflower blue. They were fashioned like the maid of honor's. Their gauntlets and matching headpieces were trimmed with ostrich tips.

Nancy Grimshaw was the flower girl.

The bridesmaids and flower girl carried colonial style bouquets of red roses and baby mums.

The bride's mother chose a green crepe dress with brown accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Schemansky wore a wine dress with black accessories. Both mothers had rose corsages.

Adam Pfuhl, friend of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Orlando Gauliente, brother of the bride, Albert Oliveto, uncle of the bride, Martin Kershner, and George Sproder, both friends of the couple, escorted the guests to the pews.

The new Mrs. Schemansky wore an aqua gabardine suit with brown accessories for her honeymoon to an unknown destination.

The couple will be at home at 1108 Coplin avenue, Detroit, after October 23.

The bride graduated from St. Peters high school and at the time of her marriage was employed at the Parke-Davis company, Detroit. Mr. Schemansky was graduated from Ford Trade school and is now an instructor with the school.
